Parables feature prominently in the Gospel readings of the next several Sundays. These short, concrete stories use images from daily life to help explain the deeper realities of the good news. This Sunday, Jesus compares God's Word to seeds—tiny things that grow into something greater than themselves. Under the right conditions, a small beginning yields a rich harvest.

The first reading from Isaiah and the responsorial psalm both describe God's Word as holding intrinsic power. Isaiah talks about God's Word as if it were a living thing. It can move and act on its own: "My word shall not return to me void, / but shall do my will, / achieving the end for which I sent it."

The psalm compared God's Word to Israel's wet season. With the yearly return of rain, scorched hills bloom, fields as hard as concrete soften to receive the plow, sluggish animals grow fat, and hungry people dream again of abundance. In the mind of the psalmist, every Word of God contains within it such transformative power.

Jesus likely considered these images when he offered his parable. He perhaps recognized that his Israelite ancestors had been too optimistic. God's Word might have immediate and dramatic effect in many places, but in the human heart it can encounter resistance. Jesus saw the vast crowds and knew that many people had been transformed; many others, he knew, were not. In this parable, Jesus offers a reason. Individuals are free to receive God's Word, but they must first prepare the "soil" of their hearts. For those whose hearts are ready, a great harvest follows.

For many Christians, this change has already begun. In the second reading, St. Paul calls this the "first fruits of the Spirit." A heart ready for God's Word will quicken and flower like dry country after the rain. Such new life is but the beginning of eternal glory.
