Though Jesus' disciples may have hoped that he was the messiah they waited, they needed confirmation for such a radical claim. Jesus offered that confirmation slowly, establishing solid foundations before building further. For example, the disciples offer a list of people to whom many have compared Jesus—John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah, or another prophet. One senses at they had weighed each option and found it lacking. Peter's response, "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God," may have been something he had been considering for a while, or it may have come to him in the moment. Either way, Jesus recognizes that the insight came from the Father.

Peter's awareness brought him a new mission. This was symbolized in his new name and a special grace, the "power of the keys," a unique spiritual gift to support the leadership to which he was called. Christians throughout the centuries have discovered similar missions in their conversations. A sudden awareness of Christ's presence and power brings with it a new identity and unique grace. St. Francis, for example, had a sudden conversion that led to servicer with the poor. St. Thérèse of Lisieux experience a more gradual conversion and developed a life of intense contemplative awareness.

Christ calls every Christian to a similar, deeper conversion. These encounters may be sudden and powerful, or they may be gradual and gentle. Like Peter, we come to realize that Christ is more than a teacher or ancient prophet. He is a loving presence still alive and at work among us. Like Peter, we too can receive a new identity and unique spiritual gifts. With such new awareness, we can help fulfill the mission that Christ entrusts to those who bear his name.
